

CISO-as-a-Service

The optimal combination of an interim CISO and a security advisor

Did you just recently create the role as CISO in your organization? Are you in-between CISOs? Or do you want someone that can head up your security department and/or act as your spearhead on security advisory? Everything at a short notice and based on years of solid cyber security experience?

External expertise at an internal level

Columbus CISO-as-a-service adds security expertise, resources and competence and will move you close to the security level you need from day one.

We will act as the interim CISO of your company or act as a trusted security advisor to your current IT and Security Management. The CISO-as-a-Service solution is scalable depending on your specific situation and needs.

Tailored to your needs

The scope of the service as well as the service itself can be tailored to match any type of activity in your organization from increased cyber awareness/culture, compliance, strategy building, governance, security roadmaps, implementation of ISO27001 and long-term plans as well as more urgent tasks.

This is what you will obtain as a company

CISO-as-a-Service gives you the following benefits:

- Your decision makers will be able to understand cyber threats and risks within your organization, whether these are insider threats, external threats and how to get ready for a cyber insurance.
- They will also be able to define their risk appetite and balance it between security and business requirements.
- You will have a neutral party to speak to or discuss cyber risks with.
- You will get access to a flexible and scalable solution that adapts to your situation and needs.

Our methodology

We always start with an initial dialogue where we agree on the service you need. Columbus can either act as an interim CISO or provide advisory to you Security Management. We can speak to boards or top management on behalf of security or IT management or together with current management.
